

GLOBALLY RESPONSIBLE LEADERSHIP FOR SUSTAINABLE TRANSFORMATION

This innovative, global collaborative course is taught by faculty from 7 GRLI universities in Asia, Europe, and North America.

With a focus on sustainability initiatives, this team taught seminar will offer modules from each university that will enable students from around the world to work in integrated groups on strategic business projects.

The course will have live and asynchronous components.

COURSE CONTENT

Cross-sector Partnerships for Impact

Catolica Porto Business School

Developing and implementing solutions for challenging social and environmental problems in partnership with the public and non-profit sectors, with a focus on social entrepreneurship.

Transpersonal Leadership for Sustainable Transformation

LeaderShape Global Limited

Understanding the personal behaviours, values and processes required to transform organizations sustainably.

Sustainability and the Entertainment Industry

Loyola Marymount University

This module will cover the topic of sustainability as defined, engaged and implemented within the entertainment industry.

Sustainable Supply Chain Management

Colorado State University

Working with supply chain partners to manage social, environmental, and financial sustainability practices

Thriving: The Breakthrough Movement to Regenerate Nature, Society and the Economy

Antwerp Management School

Business innovation can regenerate nature and society through the six keys to thriving: the science of systems, forces of breakdown, forces of breakthrough, market opportunities, aspects of integration and qualities of leadership.

Creating Shared Value and Social Innovation

Sasin School of Management

This course will present justification for Creating Shared Value and suggest ways to capitalize on it to both corporate and social advantage, touching on an Asian perspective.

Sustainability Accounting and Reporting

University of Limerick

This module will cover the topic of sustainability accounting and disclosure in a pragmatic way, with a focus on the development of practical blueprints for engagement and integration into organizational strategy and governance

Loyola Marymount University
College of Business Administration

The Globally Responsible Leadership for Sustainable Transformation course is a LMU MBA 3-unit elective course that can count towards a regular elective or the Business & Society requirement. It is being offered as a summer course but will start in March to better mesh with international academic calendars. The instructor of record for the LMU module will be Professor Jeff Thies.

For more information about the course, contact Professor Jeff Thies at Jeffrey.Thies@lmu.edu.

To register, contact Katie Lorick at Katie.Lorick@lmu.edu or (310) 338-7562.

GLOBALLY RESPONSIBLE LEADERSHIP
INITIATIVE

The Globally Responsible Leadership Initiative is a deeply engaged international, multi-sector community focused on catalysing the development of globally responsible leadership and practice.

For more information, visit gqli.org.